Electric cars are slowly penetrating the EU market. These include battery electric vehicles and plug-in hybrid electric vehicles. While the numbers are still small (in total about 224,000) and their market share about 1.5% of new registered passenger vehicles, the number of new electric car registrations in the EU has been increasing steadily over the last few years.